

The State of Inventors' Rights and the Movement to Restore Them Randy Landreneau

Randy Landreneau has been involved in the movement to restore inventors' rights for a little over a decade. When he realized what a handful of multi-national corporations were trying to weaken our patent system in 2011, he started informing inventors and inventor groups nationwide. Since then, the movement has grown to about 60,000 individuals of which about 10,000 of those have patents. The movement is being coordinated by US Inventor of which Randy is the current president.

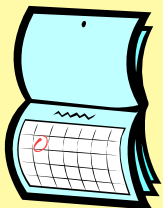

Mr. Landreneau's presentation will be educational and will cover the following topics:

- What our Founders did for inventors that was totally revolutionary
- Why large entities that began with one or two inventors often turn against inventors
- Legislation that has harmed inventors and how
- Supreme Court Decisions that have harmed inventors
- Bad legislation that US Inventor has helped stop
- What is needed to restore inventors' rights
- What is being done to restore inventors' rights
- Your questions
